4 · Pre-read (before the meeting)

Why now / context	They want to help their sales team with an immersive product configurator. Instead of relying on physical samples for every fabric, finish, or colour, sales representatives can show customers every available option digitally. Customers can see exactly how a piece of furniture will look in their own home, experiment with different textures, materials, and colours in real time, and make more confident purchase decisions. This eliminates the need for stores to stock every possible variant while making the sales process faster, more engaging, and far more effective.

What we're proposing	A 3D and AR-based product configurator for Stanley to improve the visualisation of custom furniture options and streamline the sales process.

5 · Meeting summary (after the call)

Date	The discovery call happened on 04/06/26. We created a demo and sent it to them on 11/06/26. They like the demo. An in-person meeting with the POC to discuss commercials and the timeline is scheduled for 25/06/26 at 5:00 PM.
Attendees	Ctruh: Ivy Bisht & Sharun Kanan Stanley: Karthik Bharadwaj
Key points & decisions	Stanley is a 30-year-old Pan-India furniture retailer with 75 stores. Brand portfolio includes: - Sofa and More (value premium: ₹1.5L–₹2L+ for 2-seater) - Stanley Boutique (premium: ₹4L–₹5L+ for 2-seater) - Stanley Level Next (luxury, full-home solutions) Core issue: - The make-to-order model offers ~250 leather colour options. - Current sales flow is manual: sales teams request product photos from backend teams and then share them with customers. - This process is slow, repetitive, and not scalable.
